

Business Torts

SDM litigates many cases involving business torts. These cases often arise out of complex business and professional relationships and include claims based on fraud, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, interference with existing and prospective business relationships, civil conspiracy, business disparagement, misappropriation of trade secrets, and other types of unfair competition.

Because business tort cases often involve complex fact scenarios, they require strong investigative and organizational skills. Because such cases involve complex legal theories, they require innovative and creative legal analysis. With our strong academic backgrounds and years of practical experience, our attorneys are well suited to meet these demands.

We represent both plaintiffs and defendants in business-tort cases. We sometimes enter into contingent fee arrangements, thereby shifting at least some of the litigation risk to the firm.

LAWYERS PRACTICING IN THIS AREA:

- Santosh Aravind
- Anthony Arguijo
- Michael Bernstein
- Daniel C. Bitting
- Kim Gustafson Bueno
- Sara Wilder Clark
- Willie Cochran
- Aaron M. Collins
- Amy Lee Dashiell
- John W. Ellis
- John Gasink
- Asher B. Griffin
- Mark W. Hanna
- Robyn Bigelow Hargrove
- Abe Kuczaj
- Stephen E. McConnico
- Michael Merriman
- Cindy Saiter
- Christopher D. Sileo
- Ryan Squires
- Steve Wingard